Louis D'Amore

Louis D'Amore is the Founder and President of the International Institute for Peace through Tourism (IIPT). He has been instrumental in promoting the travel and tourism industry as the world's first "Global Peace Industry" since the founding of IIPT in 1986.

In 1992, following the U.N. Conference on Environment and Development (Rio Summit), he developed the world's first Code of Ethics and Guidelines for Sustainable Tourism for the Canadian tourism industry. He also conducted the world's first international study on Codes of Conduct and best practices in Sustainable Tourism for the United Nations Environment Program (UNEP).

His consulting experience includes working with governments at all levels, and private sector organizations in a range of areas including: tourism research and master plans; community development; social impact assessment; public participation; cultural/heritage development; environment; recreation; urban planning and conflict resolution.
